2022 Legislative Scorecard Overview

Colorado has always been a leader in reproductive rights, from being the first state to decriminalize abortion in 1967, to our nationally-recognized program that provided free, long-acting reversible contraception (LARC) to patients who wanted it, and Cobalt has been at the helm of this work since the beginning.

The right to self determination and bodily autonomy are deeply held Colorado values. Cobalt's annual scorecard allows us to report on who is, or is not, living up to those shared values based on whether or not members of the General Assembly vote to support or oppose abortion access and reproductive rights.

This report is a tool used by Cobalt's more than 170,000 members across Colorado to see whether or not their legislators are committed to protecting and expanding abortion rights and reproductive health care access, and - when the time comes - to hold them accountable at the ballot box.

HB22-1279 Reproductive Health Equity Act

RHEA Signing Day: Sponsors, Advocates & Lobbyists
Outside of the Governor's Residence

The U.S. Supreme Court has all but guaranteed they are going to eliminate federal protections for abortion with their upcoming ruling in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization but we've seen the writing on the wall for decades and have been preparing for this moment. The loss of rights and bodily autonomy afforded to us by Roe v. Wade and Planned Parenthood v. Casey means the responsibility to maintain legal abortion will fall on individual states and their respective legislative leadership.

In the face of this Constitutional crisis, Colorado leaders met the moment with action, not just words. On April 4, 2022, Colorado Governor Jared Polis signed into law HB22-1279, the Reproductive Health Equity Act (RHEA). This historic legislation would not have been possible without our Sponsors: House Majority Leader Daneya Esgar (D-Pueblo), Rep. Meg Froelich (D-Littleton), and Sen. Julie Gonzales (D-Denver) in addition to our co-lead organization: the Colorado Organization for Latina Opportunity and Reproductive Rights (COLOR).

RHEA modernized Colorado statute to reflect what the Centennial State's electorate has voiced many times over: when it comes to ending a pregnancy, a woman should have the power to make decisions about her own body.

Summary of HB22-1279:

The Reproductive Health Equity Act ensures every individual has the fundamental right to choose or refuse contraception; every individual who becomes pregnant has a fundamental right to choose to continue a pregnancy and give birth or to have an abortion; and a fertilized egg, embryo, or fetus does not have independent rights under the laws of Colorado.

Moving Beyond Roe:

It's been nearly 50 years since the Supreme Court guaranteed a legal right to abortion through Roe v. Wade, but the case law failed to ensure that everyone can access abortion care – especially people of color and those who are working hard to make ends meet. Decades of abortion restrictions have denied marginalized communities the ability to get the health care they need, when they need it.

RHEA is more robust than the protections afforded by Roe: HB22-1279 explicitly affirms and protects the fundamental right to to choose or refuse all reproductive health services, including abortion without an arbitrary gestational limit. Because Coloradans know that every pregnancy, is unique, and when something goes wrong during a pregnancy—health care decisions must be left to the pregnant person in consultation with their doctor, family, and in accordance with their faith. But the work doesn't end once legality is established.

What's next?

Roe v. Wade has always been a floor, not a ceiling. We must ensure that abortion is not only legal but also accessible for anyone who wants it, without stigma, cost barriers, political interference, or fear of prosecution. The Reproductive Health, Rights, and Justice Coalition is preparing for a 2024 ballot measure to both enshrine protections for abortion access in the state Constitution as well as repeal the State Funding Ban through intentional education, organizing, and communication. This isn't "just" a women's issue; this is a civil rights and a human rights issue. This is about health and dignity, racial justice, and economic justice.

Colorado secured a significant win for abortion rights with the passage of the Reproductive Health Equity Act this year. But that wouldn't have been possible without electing pro-abortion rights candidates up and down the ballot. We must elect leaders at every level of government who will protect the right to abortion, and who will act to move Colorado beyond legality by fighting to eliminate the structural, financial, and systemic barriers that restrict abortion access.

While the predictions about the U.S. Supreme Court's upcoming ruling in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization are distressing, Cobalt remains steadfast in our dedication to protect and advance abortion access for Coloradans and beyond.

To Colorado's legislative leaders, patient & provider advocates, partner organizations, and Cobalt supporters:
